Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 22 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Central areas cloudy with some rain. Otherwise dry and bright.

Today:
A band of cloud and occasional rain lying across Wales, western England, and southeast Scotland edging slowly southeast to reach the far southeast by evening. Sunny spells following, although with showers for northwest Scotland. Mild in the southeast.

Tonight:
Rain, some heavy, pushing across many northern areas by morning. Clear spells elsewhere although low cloud and patchy fog in southeast. Becoming windy with gales in the north and west.

Tuesday:
Outbreaks of rain, heavy and persistent at times across the north. Drier and brighter in the southeast. Windy, with severe gales across Scotland. Mild everywhere.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Windy with rain in the north and west on Wednesday. Showers following for northern and western areas. Dry and sunny in the south and east. Mild, especially in the southeast.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.